Byatt The Thing In The Forest Text

Byatt's The Thing in the Forest is a dark adapted eye. The story begins with two young girls, Penny and Primrose, sent away from London to a children's shelter during World War II. The girls encounter a hideous creature in the forest, which seems to have moved on from their childhood trauma.

The story follows the girls as they grow up in very different ways, Penny finding ways to mask her trauma and Primrose extroverting herself to cope. The text suggests that the story is expected to include the fantasy aspect of a fairy tale, containing all the well-known signs of a fairy tale from the beginning. The plot is expected to include the fantasy aspect of a fairy tale, getting all the key plot points of the story. The original text plus a side by side modern
