In 1930, this is an in-depth exploration of what happened between the death of Jesus and the resurrection as recorded in the Bible. Samuel Eliot Morison, July 9, 1887 - May 15, 1976, was professor of history at Harvard University known for his works on maritime history. Morison's service in the US Navy during World War II provided firsthand research for his 15-volume history of United States naval operations in World War II. Among other awards and honors, he received two Pulitzer prizes and two Bancroft prizes. He set out to disprove the Christian faith by showing the resurrection of Christ to be a farce. Upon deeper study, Morison learned the truth of the matter: Jesus did actually rise from the dead as a result. Morison became a Christian and wrote this book.

The strangeness of the resurrection story had captured Frank Morison's attention, and influenced by skeptic thinkers at the turn of the century, he set out to prove that the story of Christ's resurrection was only a myth. His probing, however, led him to discover the validity of the biblical record in a moving personal way. Who moved the stone is considered by many to be a classic.

John Morison passed away peacefully at the Dr. Bob Kemp Hospice on January 5, 2019, in his 72nd year with his family by his side. Loving husband of Vivienne, cherished father of James and Allan Carisa, grandfather to Jessica Maddison and Macy, survived by his siblings Kelly, Nancy, and Peter John. Growing up in New Jersey, Frank Morison began developing his own style through r.i.p. art scenes that brought him considerable street recognition and local acclaim but it wasn't until he visited the Louvre Museum in Paris with his dancing group that he realized painting was his true creative path.
